Dear Mr. Chao,

Have you ever wondered what you would look like as an IB student?

(Unless you actually were one... in which case that question is void. Well, this is my (somewhat rushed) interpretation of you as an IB diploma candidate!

I think you would excel as an IB candidate because you are so thoughtful, hardworking, compassionate, and open to many/various opinions/ideas.

It has been a huge pleasure and honour getting to know you this year!

Even though most of our interactions have been in the form of me complaining (about EE stress, the Mr. Crowell debacle, or the difficulties of HL Math), not all have. I am grateful for all the moments you simply took to chat with me; and for the way that you carefully formulate all your statements.

Thanks so much for always striving to improve the IB experience, and for always considering our unreasonable suggestions (however briefly).

I will miss your cheerful smile and awesome green pants!

Best Regards,

Max Wang
